Destigmatizing dementia in a small Scottish town

By Anne Stein

When the Rotary Club of Duns, Scotland, dedicated its charitable efforts to dementia several years ago, a few of its members, including 2014-15 Club President David McLuckie, were all too familiar with the disease's toll. His mother-in-law had lived for years with dementia, and the club's junior president had also lost a parent to the illness.

"There was a lot of interest within the club to make things better within our community for caregivers and families,?" says McLuckie.

They started with a fundraising dinner, organized by Rotarian Grant Stephen, to benefit Alzheimer Scotland. There were three popular speakers, an auction, and more than 150 guests, netting this small club more than $12,000. Stephen was recognized with a Champions of Change Award by Rotary International in Great Britain and Ireland for his efforts.

But the club didn't stop there.

When McLuckie's wife, Audrey, proposed opening a "dementia café?" to give caregivers and people with dementia a place to meet for tea, share information, and learn from visiting social workers and other experts, the club funded the café's rent and other expenses to operate one afternoon a month at Duns Parish Church.

"I'd heard about these cafés from Alzheimer Scotland and thought it would be a good idea in Duns,?" says Audrey, whose mother died a month before the café opened in January 2015. "I was lucky to have a supportive husband and sister, and access to good information, but not everyone has that."

We wanted to make it something people were not afraid to talk about.

Audrey McLuckie

Rotarian wives and other volunteers brought baked goods each month to what became the Forget-Me-Not Café (it's moving to a cozy new space this summer). And local Rotarians asked for donations to the café in lieu of gifts on their birthdays

The Duns club was also certified as "Dementia Friendly" by Alzheimer Scotland, after a visiting dementia nurse took Rotarians through a training about the disease.

"We wanted to raise the profile of dementia," Audrey McLuckie says about the café and the club's campaign. "We wanted to make it something people were not afraid to talk about."

Today's Program - Amy Smith - Humanitarian Engineer

Amy Smith - founded the D-Lab program at MIT which introduces students to technological, social, and economic problems of the Third World. She also co-founded Innovations in International Health to facilitate collaboration among researchers around the world to develop medical technologies for resource-poor settings. Humanitarian engineering is research and design to directly improve the well-being of poor, marginalized, or under-served communities, which often lack the means to address pressing problems

The Rotary Foundation

EVERY ROTARIAN EVERY YEAR

Every minute of every day someone's life is being improved by our Rotary Foundation. Wells are being dug in India, blind children are using Braille typewriters in Brazil, toilets are part of improved sanitation in Sri Lanka, and dental treatment is available to the needy in Nicaragua.

In a world where the divide between the haves and have-nots is growing, we as Rotarians must do our part and "do good in the world."

Contributions from every Rotarian to the Annual Fund every year are critical to making a difference in our world.
